History of Modern Pentathlon

The Pentathlon consisting of running the length of the stadium, jumping, throwing the spear, throwing the discus and wrestling was introduced for the first time at the 18th Olympiad in 708 BC. The Pentathlon held a position of unique importance in the Games and was considered to be the climax, with the winner ranked as "Victor Ludorum".

Admiration for the ancient Pentathlon was fully shared by the founder of the Modern Olympics, Baron Pierre de Coubertin, and from 1909, he tried to have the event re-introduced into the Olympic programme. Pentathlon's moment came two years later at the 14th session of the International Olympic Committee in Budapest (HUN) when, as the Baron stated: "the Holy Ghost of sport illuminated my colleagues and they accepted a competition to which I attach great importance".

The Modern Pentathlon

The Modern Pentathlon, introduced at the 5th Olympiad in Stockholm (SWE) in 1912, comprised the contemporary sports of pistol shooting, fencing, swimming, horse riding and running, and embraced the spirit of its ancient counterpart. It was De Coubertin's belief that it would be this event, above all others, that "tested a man's moral qualities as much as his physical resources and skills, producing thereby the ideal, complete athlete." This new sport was enthusiastically adopted with its inherent demands of courage, co-ordination, physical fitness, self-discipline and flexibility in ever changing circumstances. A young American Lieutenant, later to be the famous 2nd World War General George S. Patton, was to finish fifth in the first ever Olympic Modern Pentathlon competition. The mixture of physical and mental skills demanded in the Pentathlon has also meant that athletes have been able to compete in as many as three or four Olympic Games. This is because whilst running and swimming times can be expected to decline with age, experience and skill in the technical disciplines often increase.

The oldest Olympic gold medallist in the Modern Pentathlon to date is Pavel Lednev (former URS) who was 37 years old at the 1980 Games in Moscow.

Today, both men and women complete all five events of the Modern Pentathlon in one day. A points system for each event is based on a standard performance earning 1000 points. The fifth and final event is a 3 km Run, which has a handicap start based on the athletes' total points from the first four events. The winner of the competition is the first athlete to cross the finishing line.

Administration of Modern Pentathlon

Modern Pentathlon was administered directly by the IOC until 1948, when the International Modern Pentathlon Union (UIPM) was founded by Gustaf Dyrssen

Sven Thofelt, Sweden 1932

(1920 Olympic Champion) from Sweden as the first President and Sven Thofelt, Secretary General, and later to be President for 28 years (IOC Member 1970 – 1976).

In 1960, Biathlon (cross country skiing and rifle shooting) was introduced in the Olympic Program and joined the Union which thereafter became the Union Internationale de Pentathlon Moderne and Biathlon (UIPMB). In 1993, an agreement was made to retain the Union as an umbrella body under which the UIPM and the International Biathlon (IBU) could act autonomously. The UIPMB, however, continued to be the only international multi-sport organisation recognised by the IOC.

Until 1998, the President of Modern Pentathlon acted as President of the Union during the two years prior to the Summer Games, and the President of the Biathlon acted as such for two years prior to each of the Winter Games. Having matured into an organisation capable of continuing on its own, the IBU decided on 26 June 1998, to exist autonomously. The separation from the UIPMB took effect on 20 August 1998, creating two distinct International Federations – the UIPM and the IBU, both of which are recognised by the IOC and GAISF. At this moment, there are over 100 National Modern Pentathlon Federations affiliated with UIPM.

Modern Pentathlon Competitions

Olympic Games

From 1912 to 1980 the Olympic Modern Pentathlon competition was held over five days with one event per day. Between 1984 and 1992, experiments with the format of the sport meant that the competition was held over four days with either running and shooting or swimming and shooting on the same day. There were individual medals awarded and Team medals decided by adding the three individual scores of Team members together.

For the Atlanta Olympic Games in 1996, the competition was a one-day event in which 32 men who qualified via pre-Olympic competitions participated. Only individual medals were awarded. In 1998, the UIPM received approval for women to compete in the Sydney 2000 Olympics Games and 24 men and 24 women competed in the individual competitions. For the first time in history, the Pentathlon venues were 96 % sold out. In Athens 2004, 32 men and 32 women competed and both competitions were 100 % sold-out. In Beijing 2008, 36 women and 36 men will compete, following an increase in quota awarded to UIPM by the IOC Executive Board.

World Championships

World Championships take place annually for Senior, Junior and Youth A (17-18 years), Men & Women. Additionally, there is a World Relay Championships annually for both Senior and Junior Men and Women. Youth World Championships differ slightly in their format in that they do not include riding.

At least 96 Men and Women may compete at the World Championships, having achieved a qualifying standard. There are three elements to the World Championships: Qualification for the Individual competition, Individual Finals competition and a Team Relay competition.

Athletes qualify for the Final via qualification groups of up to 36 athletes with, in the case of 3 groups, the first 12 placed athletes qualifying and in the case of 4 groups, the first 9 in each group qualify. The Final is therefore comprised of the best 36 competitors from such qualification.

Individual medals and prize money are awarded as well as team medals which are decided by adding the three individual team member's scores together.

Team Relay

The Team Relay event consists of 16 teams of three athletes competing in a continuous relay completed in one day. Each Team Member fires 10 shots, swims 100 m, fences one opposing team member, runs 1500 m, and rides a horse over 8 x show jumps. In this way, the relay competition is an exciting spectacle requiring contribution from each team member in every event.

World Cup Competition

A World Cup series for Men and Women has been organised since 1990. Each year 4–6 World Cup competitions and a World Cup Final are organised and the whole package is called a World Cup Circuit. The best 36 athletes qualify for the World Cup Final via a league table constructed from their three best results at World Cup competitions. Prize money is also available.

Biathlon

Designed as a 'Sport for All', Biathlon has been practised for over 50 years and is the most recent of the UIPM products. The first Biathlon World Championships took place in Monaco in 1999 and the Biathlon World Tour started in 2002 now includes 6 cities staging a Tour event every year. Through Biathlon, the UIPM has established a competition comprised of the two fundamental components of Modern Pentathlon and most practised sports in the world - run and swim. It is a fun sport to take part in and a fun sport to watch. The competition begins with a pack start of runners who complete one-half of the total running distance before entering a 50 meter transition area. Athletes then dive into the water and swim the required swimming distance before exiting the water, putting on their shoes and running the second leg of the run to the finish line. Capable of being organised in any season, indoors or outdoors, Biathlon competition distances differ depending upon age category. Senior, Junior and Youth A athletes run 1500 m, swim 200 m, and run 1500 m. Shorter distances exist for Masters and Youth B, C, D and E categories. Biathlon permits more involvement for the smaller countries in the world of sport, allowing UIPM to introduce the world's youth to the sport of modern pentathlon and to instil the values of sport for all, culture and education through sport.

In 2005, the UIPM launched a new competition - World School Biathlon. The swim is conducted in a 25 m or 50 m pool and the run is conducted preferably on a standardised track. The swim is conducted first and the run is mass start. The Final result is the sum of the swimming and running times. World School Biathlon is intended for schools and all institutions who are interested in the well being of children. The originality of the project is that schools will take part to this World competition by entering their results in a database using the UIPM website (www.pentathlon.org) directly from their location. Therefore this global competition does not require any funding for transportation or lodging. All can be made 'at home' by the teacher or coach. The results are calculated at the end of each year and awards given to the winning athletes. UIPM has a philosophy linking all its activities in order to achieve an Education through Sport. World School Biathlon, by using the internet as a tool to enable schools to participate in friendly competition, is easy to organise and inexpensive to practice. UIPM has the wish to collaborate with the appropriate institutions in order to contribute developing an access to Sport for All for a better education and communication between youth around the world.

The five disciplines:

Pistol Shooting

The shooting event is a 10-metre air pistol shot at a stationary target, held indoors using electronic or manual targets. Competitors fire 20 shots at 20 targets from a distance of 10 metres with a time limit of 40 seconds for each shot. A 4.5 millimetre air pistol is used. The targets have 10 rings and a centre circle. One point is scored for the outside ring, two for the next ring and so on. Ten points are scored for a hit in the centre circle. If a shot hits the line between two rings, the higher score is counted. Competitors must stand to shoot holding the pistol, which must weigh less than 1500 grams, with one hand. Each shooter is permitted a five-minute warm up period. Athletes are allowed five minutes to repair a pistol that malfunctions during the event and can apply for further repair time if it is required. When the competitors have completed their 20 shots, the results are converted into a points score. The maximum target score is 200, which converts to 1336 Pentathlon points. A target score of 172 equates to 1000 Pentathlon points with every target point above or below 172 worth +/- 12 Pentathlon points.

Epée Fencing

Fencing is a series of one-touch bouts with épée swords. Unchanged since 1912, the fencing event of modern pentathlon is a round-robin tournament, with a single touch deciding each match. The fencing event is held in an indoor arena on special strips (pistes) measuring 14 m long and between 1.5 m and 2 m wide. Each competitor has a bout against every other competitor. Bouts last for one minute, the winner being the first fencer to score a hit. If neither scores a hit, both competitors register a defeat. If competitors hit one another within 0.04 of a second (a double hit), neither hit is registered. Point penalties are awarded for a variety of infringements including hitting the épée on anything other than the opponent to register a hit, crossing the boundary line with both feet or to avoid a hit, dangerous play and when a fencer turns their back on the opponent. 70 % bouts won corresponds to 1000 Pentathlon points. Each win is called a victory and each loss a defeat. Each victory over or under the 70 % mark is worth a specific point value and this number is in accordance with the number of competitors:

22-23 matches gives +/-40 points

24-26 matches gives +/-36 points

27-29 matches gives +/-32 points

30-33 matches gives +/-28 points

34-39 matches gives +/-24 points

Example: 36 competitions (the number of athletes in a final) means 35 bouts, 70 % of 35 bouts = 25 victories = 1000 points, 23 victories are therefore worth 952 Pentathlon points.

Swimming

Pentathletes usually have a swimming background, which is considered to be the only Pentathlon discipline that cannot be taught at a high level at an older age. For this reason, good swimming standards are considered to be a 'precondition' for participation in Modern Pentathlon. The swimming event is a free-style race over 200 m for men and women with athletes seeded in heats according to their personal best time. A time of 2:30 minutes for men and 2:40 minutes for women earns 1000 Pentathlon points. Every 0.33 second is worth +/- 4 points and thus the value of each swimming second is worth 12 points. Example the time 2:32.8 minutes corresponds to 968 points for men and 1088 points for women. Forty-point penalties are incurred for a false start or failing to touch the wall at the end of a lap.

Riding - Equestrian Show Jumping

The riding event (equestrian show jumping) included in the modern pentathlon competition involves jumping over obstacles of up to 120 cm in height. The obstacle course is between 350-450 m in length and includes 12 obstacles with one double and one triple, for 15 jumps. Athletes compete on horse provided by the organisers, which are selected from a random draw 20 minutes prior to the event. For warm up and preparation purposes, athletes are allowed to ride their allocated horse for 20 minutes and to have up to five trial jumps in the warm-up arena provided for the purpose. Competitors can walk the course before riding begins. The athlete has a specific time limit within which to complete the course, and the time limit is set according to its length. A clear round in time allowed (varies between 1 minute and 1.17 minutes) gives the rider 1200 Pentathlon points. For each mistake the rider loses points. Examples of penalties given are 28 points for knock-down and 40 points for every refusal or disobedience; but any disobedience leading to the knocking down of an obstacle gives 60 points deduction. After two refusals to jump, the rider must try to jump the next obstacle. For every obstacle not jumped, the rider loses 200 points. A fall of the rider from the horse or they both fall is a 40 point penalty. After two falls, the riding will be terminated and the rider will have a further 300 points deducted. Each second over the time limit means a deduction of 4 points. The maximum time is the standard time + 75 seconds. If the rider is slower than the maximum time allowed, the riding is terminated and the rider given minus 240 points and also a deduction of 80 points per obstacle not jumped. Riders must stay between the flags marking the course and must jump the obstacles in order. Riders must wear protective headgear and a riding jacket and can use a whip and spurs; but hoods and blinkers are prohibited.

Cross-Country Running

Being the last event, the running has a major significance and constitutes the last chance for athletes to catch up on points possibly lost in the previous events.

The run consists of a cross-country race conducted on an uneven terrain and over a distance of 3 km. A time of 10 minutes for men and 11 minutes 20 seconds for women adds 1000 Pentathlon points to the overall score of the athlete. Each second faster or slower is worth +/-4 points. The starting order of the running event is based on the handicap system, according to the score of the athletes after the first four events. Competitors set off at intervals which correspond in seconds to the Pentathlon points difference between themselves and the athlete in front.

This procedure is followed because the order in which the athletes finish is also the final standing in the competition. This handicap system was adopted for two main reasons: firstly, spectators can directly assess the finishing order and secondly, the athletes are motivated to overtake as many competitors as they can since they are competing against their opponents and not just the clock.
